

MAKUCH & Co.

Bio

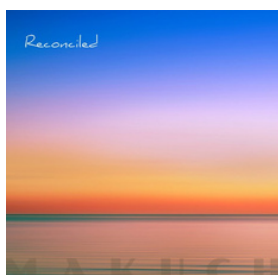

Mark Makuch spent the past few decades writing songs in borrowed hours—late nights at the kitchen table after the kids were asleep, early mornings before the chaos began. Now he's finally stepping out of the shadows with a studio EP and as MAKUCH & Co., a full band bringing to life the music that's been quietly accumulating in notebooks and voice memos, offering the wisdom and perspective that only comes from living long enough to understand which memories matter most. He's joined by Mike Glendon (lead guitar), Isabel Stokes (keys and harmonies), Andrew Long (bass), and Gord Fynes (drums). New to the Toronto music scene, MAKUCH & Co. hopes to add a jolt of earnest, anthemic folk-rock that elevates the deep feelings at the heart of small human moments. MAKUCH & Co. brings melody and meaning to the realities of life: the years that slip away, the relationships that shift, the quiet struggles of holding yourself together while holding onto what matters.

Ten-Speed Bike

MAKUCH's debut single "Ten-Speed Bike" explores that gut-punch moment when you think you see someone from your past—how one split second can unlock memories of sneaking out, stolen moments under the stars, and racing home at dawn when the world felt infinite and a bike was your ticket to everything.

Reconciled

"Reconciled" is an invitation to inner peace and emotional healing. It's about finding a sanctuary that's not just a physical place, but a state of mind where past struggles and future anxieties lose their grip. It's about discovering that home we've all been searching for.
